

Institute of Applied Linguistics

The Institute of Applied Linguistics is a didactic unit within which linguists and foreign language teachers have been trained.

The Institute of Applied Linguistics offers the following field of study:
Philology

Those who study Philology may choose from the following:

I. Philologist in business

1. English in Business

II. Teaching Foreign Languages

1. The teacher of English
2. The teacher of Spanish with English

III. The culture and tourism of the Mediterranean countries with the leading language: Spanish.

The program embraces the following areas:

- practical foreign languages learning;
- business correspondence in a foreign language;
- specialist texts translation;
- basics of economics;
- basics of law;
- public relations;
- new technologies in business.

Now part-time programme available to those who wish to study the Spanish language! They may choose from the following:

1. The teacher of Spanish with English
2. The culture and tourism of the Mediterranean countries with English

Now part-time programme available to those who wish to study the English language!

1. The teacher of English

Now evening classes available to those who work! English and Spanish from elementary level!

All students may continue their M. A studies at Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań, a well recognized university of great traditions.

